

some of it so she notified Mrs. Easton in her second-hand furniture store at 338 South Broad Street and Mrs. Easton purchased the furniture and a young man and an older man came and took it away in a wagon, that she often heard people say, "There goes the second-hand woman and her horse and wagon." She used to drive it around herself. Outside of that Mrs. Stillwell does not know anything about this woman.

Operative then interviewed a Mr. Farley who conducts a drug store at Market and Broad Streets who said he knew this Mrs. Easton well, she often came into his store and made purchases.

Operative also interviewed a Mrs. Carey who conducted a candy store at 348 South Broad Street at the time Mrs. Easton was there. She now lives at 11 Chalmers Street and said that she knew Mrs. Easton who came into her store on many occasions to buy candy that she never had much to say to her and seemed to be a quiet woman of neat appearance.

Operative also interviewed Dr. Madden whose office is within a few doors of 338 South Broad Street who stated that he remembers Mrs. Easton. Could give no further information about her.
